PATRICK FAILS IN EFFORT TO GET REPRIEVE

Gov. Higgins Denies Condemned Murderer's Application for More Time TO HURRY WITH APPEAL. Will Attempt to Take His Case to the United States Supreme Court.

A despatch from Albany to The Evening World announces that Gov. Higgins has denied a reprieve of thirty days to Albert F. Patrick, the condemned murderer, who is in Sing Sing awaiting execution during the week beginning Jan. 10. Patrick's only hope is that his lawyers can get his case before the Supreme Court of the United States on a writ of error, which would operate as a stay until a decision could be reached.

The decision of the Governor was taken to Patrick as soon as the news reached Warden Johnson at Sing Sing, and preparations for the execution will be set under way. The wily lawyer, who has so successfully directed his own fight against death, is breaking down under the nervous strain as the vision of the electric chair grows clearer, and has become desperate.

Unable to get thirty days to prepare their appeal to the United States Supreme Court, Patrick's lawyers will rush it along as soon as possible. It is a forlorn hope, as every court that has considered the case has decided that the conviction of Patrick of the murder of millionaire William Marsh Rice was legal.

The Governor made it plain that his denial of the reprieve was not to be interpreted as in any way foreboding what his action would be upon an application for executive clemency. He has written Patrick's attorneys stating that in view of the long period which has elapsed since Patrick's conviction he is not satisfied that a further delay for the sole purpose of taking an appeal to the United States Supreme Court would be in the interests of justice.

WOMAN SCARES MASKED THIEF BY SCREAMING

Mrs. Rossiter Became Excited When He Took Her Gold Watch. FORGOT HIS WARNING. Burglar Fled When She Made an Outcry, and Left Many Valuables.

It was a woman's scream that broke the nerve of a burglar with a revolver who had calmly worked away collecting valuables in the house of Walter K. Rossiter, secretary of the Brooklyn Union Gas Company, at No. 181 South Oxford street, Brooklyn, early to-day. Mrs. Rossiter had been covered by the man's revolver, but she became so excited when she saw him taking her gold watch from the bureau that she screamed loudly. This caused him to run away with only $300 worth of valuables, although he had a great amount of loot stored ready for transportation in the cellar.

The burglar entered the house by prying open the front basement window. He evidently spent several hours collecting cut glass, which he tied in a table cloth. On the upper floors he was successful until he came to the room of Miss Helen Rossiter, the young daughter of Mr. Rossiter. She was awakened, but he had gone out of her room before she was fully conscious. She called out to her parents across the hall.

"Is papa walking about?"

Confronted by burglars.

Mrs. Rossiter awoke and answered that he was in bed and was asleep. Just as she spoke the burglar appeared in her doorway. He wore a mask and carried a revolver and a pocket electric light. Flashing the light in her face and covering her with the gun he ordered her to keep quiet.

Mr. Rossiter awoke to look into the middle of the revolver, and he sat quietly. The burglar went to the closet, took a diamond ring and a pocket watch, and then he went to the bureau where Mrs. Rossiter's jewels were in plain sight.

She was so excited that she forgot his order to keep quiet.

"Take everything but my gold beads," she said. "Leave them, please."

"All right, lady," the burglar answered. "Have they are safe and sound."

Frightened by scream.

As he spoke he held them up so she could see them. Then he placed them on another part of the bureau. He picked up several rings and brooches, but when he took the beautiful gold watch that was a present to Mrs. Rossiter she screamed and the watch fell to the floor. The burglar dropped the watch and ran out of the room. He carried a quantity of jewelry untouched and ran out of the room. He carried a quantity of jewelry untouched and ran out of the room. He carried a quantity of jewelry untouched and ran out of the room.

WOMAN FIGHTS IN WHITE HOUSE TO SEE ROOSEVELT

Gave Battle to Officers When Ordered from Executive Offices. DRAGGED IN THE MUD. Then Carried to Patrol Wagon and Taken to House of Detention.

(Special to The Evening World.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—A well-dressed woman, who gave her name as Mrs. Minnie Morris, of this city, tried to see President Roosevelt at the White House this afternoon.

Falling and being told to leave, she created an uproar and gave a hard battle to four men, who were called to put her out.

She went to the Executive offices and her husband had been discharged from a Government position. She declared a great wrong had been done him and that if she could see the President she could convince him of that fact.

Assistant Secretary Barnes told her she could not see Mr. Roosevelt, and ordered her to leave the place, but she refused to go.

Barnes called a policeman and told him to put the woman out. The woman is large and muscular and it took three policemen and a negro messenger to get her out of the office.

In her struggle her dress was torn and she was dragged through the mud to a room in the east side of the White House, where she was held until a policeman came to take her to the House of Detention, where she will be examined for her sanity.

She did not appear to be insane, talked rationally and made her request to see the President in a respectful manner.

The woman has been stopping at the New Willard Hotel here for two weeks, registering from the District of Columbia. She left the hotel yesterday, it was 11 o'clock when the woman, who is apparently about fifty years of age, entered the executive offices and inquired for Secretary Loeb. Through a messenger she was taken to the east side of the White House, where she was held until a policeman came to take her to the House of Detention, where she will be examined for her sanity.

Secretary Loeb was engaged at the moment and not recognizing the name of the woman, he called for the name of the woman, who was held until a policeman came to take her to the House of Detention, where she will be examined for her sanity.

NEW HAVEN BROTHER-IN-LAW OF SLAIN CHAS. A. EDWARDS

MARRIED COP KNEW HOW TO SAVE A BABY

"Fix Mustard Bath" He Told Mother of Child in Convulsions.

If a bachelor policeman had not been having his uniform coat mended in the tailor shop at No. 12 East One Hundred and Fourth street to-day when Mrs. James Slater, of that address, discovered that her eight-months-old and only baby Leo was ill, little Leo would be a dead baby at this reading. But Policeman Bombach, who was mending his uniform coat, mended at that time, is the father of a family and has helped raise his own babies, so little Leo is alive.

Bombach, his coat off and in the hands of the tailor, was reading a paper when Mrs. Slater ran downstairs and into the street, shrieking. He went to the door and saw, seeing him in part-uniform, recognized him as a policeman and appealed to him.

"Save my baby, he is dying!" she cried.

Baby in Convulsions.

Bombach ran up the stairs three at a time. On the third floor he heard a baby screaming and ran into the flat from which the sound proceeded. Little Leo was on a bed, just going into a terrible series of convulsions.

The mother followed the policeman. She was more calm, because he seemed to know what he was about.

"Let the hot water run in the bathtub," commanded Bombach. "Get out all the mustard you have in the house and pour it into the hot water. Have it ready when I get back. Take me the baby."

He went to the nearest patrol box and called an ambulance from H. R. Jan. Hospital. When he got back the bath was ready and little Leo was carried him to the bathroom and the doctor's mother planned him into the hot, mustard-laden water.

Quick Cure Effectuated.

The ambulance came after a time, with Dr. Reed in charge. He hurried up to the Slater flat, and there was Bombach, with little Leo in his arms and little Leo gurgling and smiling and clapping his hands. The policeman's quick treatment had proved effective.

"The child had acute indigestion," explained Dr. Reed. "Bombach did just the proper thing at just the proper moment. If he had waited for me without doing anything the child would have died."

Mrs. Slater kissed Policeman Bombach right on the mouth, and neither Mrs. Bombach nor Mrs. Slater will be a bit jealous either. All of the women in the flat-house shook their heads until they were away from them, and he was reported for duty at the East One Hundred and Fourth street station house.
